International Aviation Alliances and

... There are literally hundreds of airline alliances, some spanning just a few airlines, trying to conquer the a certain part of the globe, others feature many airlines, trying to conquer the world. Despite this, there are only three major alliances: SkyTeam, Oneworld and Star Alliance, with the latter being the largest airline alliance of them all. What are airline alliances? How 3 alliances rule the world ... Star Alliance was founded in 1997 and is currently the largest airline alliance in the world consisting of 28 full members. Star is mainly focused on marketing and cost cutting for its member airlines. Members include: Lufthansa, SAS, Thai International and United Airlines. The main goal of the alliance is to create a `smooth travel experience`. International Airline Alliances - AviationLaw.EU In international aviation, alliances generate an additional and unique benefit not found in other sectors: airline alliances have been a vital contributor to the liberalization of worldwide air transport. They are helping to break down barriers to competitive entry that even Open international aviation alliances ... The effect on competition of airline alliances depends upon the nature of the allied networks. In particular, an alliance can significantly reduce competition on overlapping non-stop routes and overlapping connecting routes

Aviation groupings. The scope and nature of these alliances differ, but there is a tendency towards deeper alliances involving co-operation on all aspects of the airline business.
These super-alliances are coming as close to actual mergers as aviation's Byzantine regulations allow, raising fundamental questions for competition policymakers and enforcers.
